Title: Artpark Archival Collection

Name and Location of Repository: Burchfield Penney Art Center

Date: 1970 - 2010 (Inclusive Dates) 1974-2005 (General Bulk Dates)

Extent: 118.979 linear feet of textual, photographic and audio-visual materials

Name of Creator: Earl W. Brydges Artpark State Park

Administrative History:

Artpark is currently (as of 2021) a 154-acre State Park along the Niagara River Gorge, located on the American side of the American-Canadian border in Lewiston, NY. It was initially created to develop tourism around local historic attractions and revitalize the area following late 1950s development of the New York State Power Authority power plant in Niagara Falls. Over-developed and costly theater construction under State Senator Earl W. Brydges in this direction of cultural development, said to be modeled after the Saratoga Performing Arts Center, resulted in a consulting emergency between the Natural Heritage Trust, the New York State Office of Parks and Recreation, and national experts and local cultural community leadership. This included the arts administration consulting firm Arts Development Associates (which had helped with the Lincoln Center), and a Steering Committee involving, amongst many, Niagara University Theater director Brother Augustine Towey, C.M., and Haudenosaunee Council on the Arts founder and artist Duffy Wilson.

As a result, Artpark (or the Artpark program at the Earl W. Brydges Artpark) emerged from the Niagara Frontier Performing Arts Center, and in 1973 was established as a publicly-funded state park dedicated to all of the arts, with portions of support coming from earned revenue, grants and contributions. Formative Artpark administrative leadership included Dale McConathy (Executive Director 1973-1974), Joanne Allison (Associate Director 1976-1981 and Executive Director 1981-1989), Christopher Keene (Music Director 1974-1989 and President 1985-1989), and David Midland, who replaced McConathy as Acting Executive Director in 1974 (continuing as Executive Director from 1974 to 1981 and again as President and Executive Director in 1989). The seasonal program opened for its first summer on July 25th, 1974, the park site surrounding the cultural and historic heritage sites having served previously as a quarry, garbage and chemical dump, and spoils pile for the Niagara Power Project. Critical and media attention was local, national, and international towards Artpark's experiment in public art.

The Artist-in-Residence or Visual Arts program (1974-1991) was a major part of this park revitalization, dedicated in its first year to the memory of Robert Smithson and requiring artists to practice art in a public laboratory setting. Annual catalogues were produced from 1974-1989, with the first catalogue covering years 1974-1976. The program was administered by David Katzive (1974-1976 and again in 1979 and 1990) Rae Tyson (1974-1978), Joanne Allison (interim, late 70s), Richard Huntington (Visual Arts Director, 1982-1985), and Joan McDonough (under the Park Programs designation of the 80s and 90s). Original artist residencies in the Program in Visual Arts in 1974 included nearly thirty groups or individuals participating in periods from one to ten weeks in various media, including film, video, poetry, music, performance, land art, and sculpture. Important American, Canadian, and international artists were paid a weekly fee and a living stipend, travel and materials allowances. In 1979 The A-I-R or Visual Arts program was formally divided into Project artists or Major Projects works and Artists-in-Residence or crafts works. Project artists consisted of around a dozen individuals or collectives coming for periods of 3-6 weeks while Artists-in-Residence could consist of 40 craft artists.

Other programming at Artpark included nature and recreational activities, children's and all-ages art workshops, crafts demonstrations, cooking workshops, performing-artists-in-the-park (PAPS) and storytellers, outdoor theater (especially the Niagara University affiliated A.R.T., or Artpark Repertory Theater), summer writing and art class daycamps, and special events that ranged from outdoor movies and local community partner festivals to further artist and performance programming. Partners included the Buffalo Philharmonic Orchestra.

To host such diverse programming, Artpark used an amphitheater, an ARTEL (an L-shaped, multilevel wooden boardwalk) with multiuse log cabin, "silo" and truck body furniture, and a Town Square with geodesic dome known for "dome workshops". The Theater, a 2400 seat state-of-the-art construction, cost over seven million dollars in the early 70s and hosted the North American premiere of a Philip Glass Opera (Satyagraha), an important Upstate NY performance of Wagner's Ring Cycle, regular collaborations with the New York City Opera (Christopher Keene), contemporary dance and choreography (including an Alvin Ailey world premiere), as well as a significant regional Jazz Festival, and traveling ballets, musicals, and Broadway, classical, and pop productions. Such facilities also allowed Artpark to host more informal artist residencies. For example, Lucy Lippard, a writer affiliated with the activist group Art Workers Coalition, came to write about Artpark during the first season. Informal artist residencies in the Theater included Philip Glass and Martha Graham. The renowned regional opera program at Artpark appears to have been lost when Christopher Keene left Artpark in 1989. While some reputationally significant artists did attend the A-I-R program in 1990, the documentation suggests that the documentary budget was cut and an annual catalogue could not be compiled from artists' documentation. In addition to the loss of opera in 1990, one A-I-R artist collective was also censored and not allowed to participate in the 1990 program, and the acclaimed Jazz Festival was subsequently no longer organized. A small group of artists in 1991 constituted the last A-I-R program.

Privatization of Artpark in 1997 under President David Midland (who returned in 1989) allowed certain portions of Artpark's 200-acres to be leased back from the state by Artpark & Company, an incorporated fundraising wing supplementing Artpark from its very earliest activities. Private donors were sought to continue programming, but most non-concert activities at Artpark were discontinued, while public art structures such as Omega and the ARTEL could not be maintained or were not retained or replaced. The artist residency program was reintroduced in the late 1990s as a small open studio program encouraging local craft artist participation but did not fund professionalized artists or participatory intermedia public land art laboratories as it once had. Artists continued to exhibit works in the gallery or outdoors on site that had been created elsewhere and transported to the Artpark state park grounds. Artpark at this time mainly shifted to a major concert and events venue with singular art projects that reduced the overall volume of activities and theme park nature of this state park dedicated to the arts.

It was not until the early aughts that Artpark again began to commission large scale land art and sculptural works from artists, including the 40th anniversary works in 2014, but not to be seen on the scale of the publicly funded artists residency program from 1974-1991.

Custodial History:

In 2013, The Earl W. Brydges Artpark State Park (“Artpark”) donated their archival holdings to the Burchfield Penney Art Center. The collection was previously stored by Artpark in two locations: “Site A” was a trailer on the Artpark State Park grounds; “Site B” was off-site storage located on the Fort Niagara campus.

Textual materials at Site A exhibited little to no original order. These materials largely consisted of promotional ephemera, administrative documents, and program documentation, but seemed to have been thrown together and moved without intent. A significant exception to this was the image binders at Site A. The image binders totaled approximately 300 binders of slides, negatives, and contact sheets, primarily from 1974-1990. These image binders exhibited nearly perfect original order. Still, due to decades stored in a trailer with no temperature controls, the binders had become sticky with adhesive from taped labels (which dripped down the sides). Nevertheless, these binders contained detailed descriptions of events, artists, and many other activities at Artpark on an item level. For the next 2 months, Archivist Heather Gring focused on conducting the initial inventory of Site A materials. Rehousing the image collection became a top priority for Archives interns, and the image binders were fully rehoused by 2014. Since then, interns have worked on item-level description of the image collection, allowing for individual images of artists to be identified within the approximately 70,000 images. This process is 65% complete as of 2021.

In October of 2013, Gring began the assessment of the archival materials stored at Fort Niagara (“Site B”). Site B materials had been stored at a World War I Naval Barracks building on the Fort Niagara campus since roughly the 1990's. Many state agencies had used this building at Fort Niagara to store documents, but by 2013 only the Artpark collection remained. Site B consisted of approximately 70 boxes of archival documentation and approximately 40 boxes of Artpark catalogs dating from 1974-1989. These boxes of historic documentation had been at Fort Niagara for so long that few staff members at Artpark were even aware of their existence.

Archival materials at Site B exhibited a high degree of original order; most boxes exhibited clear indications of having originated within a different administrative department at Artpark (administration, finance, artist-in-residence documentation, theater, etc). Several boxes contained hundreds of loose duplicates of programming-related ephemera; a representative sample of each were retained. The most significant issue with the Site B materials was the deplorable state of the storage environment; mold damage was noted on the exterior of most of the cardboard boxes, though thankfully, the mold had not significantly spread to the interior of most boxes. Because of the mold exposure, over the next three years Gring appraised, rehoused, and described the documents on-site. Due to this triage-focused approach, a master inventory was not created prior to the rehousing process. Though original order was respected by box, space and time constraints meant that sometimes two boxes with no relationship to each other would be appraised, processed and then stored in a box together. These were later referred to as "SPLIT BOXES", indicating that they needed to be split up. By 2015, all relevant archival content had been appraised from the Site B location and brought to the Burchfield Penney Art Center. This included approximately 1/3rd of the boxes of duplicate Artpark catalogs.

In 2015, the Burchfield Penney Art Center received a $20,000 grant from the Documentary Heritage Program of New York to support the archival processing of the Artpark Archives. This funding allowed the Burchfield to hire two part-time Project Archivists in succession. Sarah McLean-Plunkett (MLIS) worked on creating the folder-level inventories of materials of both Site A and Site B. She also continued to appraise the textual materials, reducing duplicate copies of some items to 5 each. Later, Jennifer Seaman Cook, a cultural and media scholar who had conducted extensive research on Artpark, was hired to continue the processing and write historical content. Both McLean-Plunkett and Seaman Cook worked closely with Archives interns to create the inventories and descriptive content.

During the summer and fall of 2019, a group of dedicated interns made great strides with the final stretch of archival processing for the Artpark Archives. They rehoused oversized materials, worked with Gring to identify and classify materials according to series, wrote the box-folder ID on thousands of folders and conducted item-level description of the AV materials.

Most materials which were transferred to the Burchfield Penney Art Center from Artpark between 2013-2015 were continuously located at these two Artpark sites. However, beginning in 2000, some materials from the Artpark collection were removed from the grounds of Artpark State Park by the Galleries at the SUNY University of Buffalo. In particular, these were removed with permission from Artpark administrators to curate an exhibition at the University at Buffalo titled Artpark: 1974-1984. Records have not been recovered which indicate at a container level where these materials were removed from the Site A storage trailer where they were located.

At the time, Artpark was seeking a permanent home for the Artpark archives, and administrators believed that the University at Buffalo might be able to eventually provide that permanent home for this collection in the future, possibly in correspondence with the Artpark show being staged and funded at UB Galleries. Talks toward this end at SUNY for the Artpark collection eventually fell through.

After the Artpark collection had eventually settled at the Burchfield Penney Art Center, the materials from the exhibition planning of the UB Galleries show were donated to the Artpark collection at the museum archives in 2017. Approximately 20 boxes of materials related to exhibition planning literature review, original magnetic media audio-visual materials, as well as boxes indicating a mixture of Site A materials and later materials donated by correspondence from retired Artpark administrators, therefor making it difficult to re-establish original order of the materials reported as pulled from the Site A trailer for the Artpark: 1974-1984 exhibition between 2000 and 2011. Folders marked "From UB" indicate that they came directly from the University at Buffalo.

In addition to Artpark collection materials coded as UB exhibition donations (which also contain Artpark site materials with unclear original order), and the textual records, image collection, and physical audio-visual materials directly collected from Sites A and B by the Burchfield Penney Art Center, the Artpark collection also includes several hard drives of digitized video. Most of this is video which had been previously digitized by the Hallwalls Contemporary Art Center, and was transferred to us via the Artpark: 1974-1984 exhibition, the use of which would require researchers to contact Hallwalls for use permissions. A small portion of Artpark video has been digitized under researcher grants donated to the Burchfield Penney Art Center for physical audio-visual materials in the care of the museum, while several radio spot reels have been digitized in-house.

Notes about arrangement:

Textual materials originally housed at Site A exhibited little original order, with the notable exception of the nearly 300 binders of images. The order of these binders has been retained, though the order of the binders themselves has been made chronological.

Textual materials housed at Site B exhibited more consistent original order, with the boxes often organized by department and function, such as administrative records, program documentation, and promotional materials. If original order was determined to be present in a meaningful way, it was retained in the rehousing process. It was not possible to retain original order strictly beyond the container level, but their general organizational structure of "department" + "year" was retained.

The majority of the containers have been arranged first by function, and then loosely by chronology; if a file structure existed in an intentional way within the box, this was retained. Many containers may contain a wide range of dated documents within; the order of chronology was determined based on the meaningful quantity of materials from a given year. Boxes which were assembled by the Archivist indicate that they are composed of “loose” materials.

Series were determined based on the functions of Artpark, but the sub-series have been determined by the Archivist to facilitate the discovery process. Series descriptions have been determined to the container level but not currently to the folder level. Because of this, some containers are cross-listed within multiple series. Series listings include the container number but not the folder inventory for each box. The folder level inventory is available in the Container List.

Notes about description:

Overall, “quotes” on folders indicate the original title of the folder was transcribed from the initial enclosures. [Brackets] indicate that the title was determined by the archival team. [Brackets] next to a name in “quotes” indicates that the original title was not indicative of the types of files within the box, though the original title was retained to adhere to the original order. Boxes 1 – 115 often have titles which are indicated in quotes. If there is no title on boxes 1 – 115, a general title is indicated in brackets.

Due to the triage approach of the initial processing at Fort Niagara, some of the aforementioned labeling conventions were not adhered to faithfully. These errors have not been corrected due to a lack of knowing the original circumstances. Note that the arrangement of the boxes do not indicate their initial location at either Site A or Site B, but this can often be determined through consultation with the Archivist.

Scope and Content:

The Artpark Archival Collection at the Burchfield Penney Art Center contains textual materials, photographs, slides, negatives, contact sheets, and AV materials (most in original format, some transferred to digital). The majority of the collection is textual and photographic, but the AV materials are extensive as well, though only the digitized selections of AV material can be viewed in its entirety. Non-transferred AV materials can be viewed for the descriptive content on their encasements.

This collection contains a comprehensive record of the actions and activities that Artpark engaged in, primarily between 1974 through the early 2000’s. The Administrative series provides a detailed record of the finances and contracts with staff, unions, visiting artists and performers. The Program Documentation series details all documentation of programs and projects at Artpark, including the Artist-In-Residence (A.I.R.), the Artists-In-Education (A.I.E.), theatrical performances, and activities on the ARTEL, as well as many smaller projects. The Public Relations series details the promotional materials to promote all of the programs and projects as well as newspaper articles and clippings. There is much overlap between Program Documentation and Public Relations.

This archival collection has been organized into the following series:

Series 1: Administrative

1-A: Financial and Administrative documentation

1-B: Contracts

Series 2: Program Documentation

2-A: Visual arts project documentation

2-B: Arts Education programming

2-C: Theater, Performance, & Music project documentation

2-D: Evaluation

Series 3: Public Relations

3-A: Articles and Clippings

3-B: Artpark-produced press

3-C: Black Archives

Series 4: Audio/Visual Materials

Series 5: Image Collection

Series Descriptions

Series 1: Administrative

Dates: 1974 - 2008

Extent: 16.46 linear feet of primarily textual materials, including blueprints.

Scope and Content:

This series includes information regarding Artpark financials, the transition to Artpark & Company, market research surveys, information on staff and volunteers, and development. This series has two subseries: "Financial Documentation" and "Contracts." 1-A, "Financial Documentation" includes both direct and indirect financial documentation. Documentation about projects, including project artists, some public-facing Public Relations documents, and some newspaper clippings have also been included here, both for contextual purposes and to attempt to respect the original order. Sub-series 1-B, "Contracts," includes all contracts created by, or in conjunction with, Artpark. This sub-series includes all artistic and organizational contracts such as state and union contracts. Many files will have restricted content, which can be restricted while still allowing some access.

This series contains the following sub-series:

1-A. Financial and administrative documentation

1-B. Contracts

Conditions governing access: See archivist for details

Series 2: Program Documentation

Date: 1974 – 2010; bulk 1974 - 2003

Extent: 59.56 linear feet of textual and photographic materials

Scope and Content:

This series includes documentation as it relates to the development of programs at Artpark, though much of this content is included in other series. Contracts, PR materials, and news clippings are included here to create a comprehensive understanding of the scope of projects undertaken at Artpark.

This series contains the following sub-series:

2-A. Visual arts project documentation (including Major Project Artists)

2-B. Arts Education programming (including A.I.E. and Art EI)

2-C. Theater, Performance, Music project documentation

2-D. Evaluation

Conditions governing access: See archivist for details

Series 3: Public Relations

Dates: 1974 – 2007; majority 1974 - 1999

Extent: 44.27 linear feet of textual and photographic materials

Scope and Content:

This series includes materials relating to Public Relations and the promoting of projects at Artpark, both internally and externally. This series contains many boxes with pre-existing original order, as well as boxes of PR materials which were compiled and appraised by the BPAC Archivist from loose materials largely at Site B. The “Black Archives” is a designation that originated with Artpark and was retained. The “Black Archives” likely refers to the black binders in which these compilations of press materials were originally housed in. Artpark also compiled oversized albums of news clippings, included here, which were removed from their enclosures but retain their original order. Sub-series 3-b includes Artpark advertising, their weekly “Take-Me-Along” handouts of current events, and brochures and pamphlets.

This series contains the following sub-series:

3-A. Articles and Clippings

3-B. Artpark-produced press

3-C. Black Archives

Conditions governing access: See archivist for details

Series 4. Audio/Visual Materials

Dates: 1975 - 2005

Extent: TBD

Scope and Content:

The AV Collection was largely found at Site A and contained little original order. This series is loosely organized by format type, and alphabetically within each format. An index includes: 133 VHS, 47 U-matic, 30 U-matic S, 1 Master tape, 1 Film, 22 Helical Scan Video, 15 reel-to-reel videotape, 9 Betacam, 6 CVC, 2 Hi8, 14 reel-to-reel audiotape, 66 cassette tapes, and 6 CDs. Boxes 204 through 216 contain video formats; box 217 contains audio formats. Many of the AV materials contain no date, but dates have been recorded where present. Many boxes contain more than one format.

Artpark content that was digitized by Hallwalls in conjunction with the University at Buffalo is not included in this collection. A public-facing inventory of the Hallwalls digitized content is not available for the finding aid, but the Archivist can provide inventories for review.

Conditions governing access: See archivist for details

Series 5. Image Collection

Dates: 1974-2010

Extent: 45.17 linear feet of photographic and textual materials (excluding OS 2 - tbd)

Scope and Content: The image collection contains all of the image and image-related media of Artpark. Much of the collection is comprised of photographs, including color slides, contact sheets, and mast sheets from events over the near-four-decade period. Promotional content, such as headshots of artists and performers. Promotional images, logo designs, and previous merchandise and t-shirt designs can be found here. The collection also contains ephemera with various image materials, such as blueprints. Item level identification of persons and events has been completed for approximately 65% of this series.

Conditions governing access: See archivist for details

Series 1: Administrative Series box list

1A: Financial and Administrative documentation

Dates: 1974-2003

Extent: 16.145 linear feet

Scope and Content: The financial and administrative documentation folder includes information related to Artpark's previous contracts, payroll budget, and finance logs. It also includes information related to public relations and official press release statements by Artpark. The section also includes binders containing information and photographs of Artpark performances, meetings and special events.

Dates: 1974-2002

Note: many files may have restricted content. Contains primarily theater and operational contracts.

Extent: 41.35 linear feet

Scope and Content: These contracts compile all negotiations, as well as correspondences, between Artpark and its guest musicians during its performance seasons. Contracts may also involve other entities Artpark has made partnerships with. Contracts also have financial information between musicians and other relevant parties.

3-C. Black Archives

Dates: 1981-1999

Extent: 4.23 linear feet

Scope and Content: The first box primarily contains correspondences, contracts, and in-voices. Promotional materials also appear in this series, such as press release information, brochures, playbills, season schedules, newspaper clippings and fliers. Marketing and public relations materials are also present.

Note: This term denotes what these materials were originally called by Artpark Staff. The “Black Archives” were black binders assembled by Artpark Staff to summarize and document the past years’ activities.

Series 4: Audio/Visual Collection box list

Dates: 1975-2005

Extent: TBD

Scope and Content: The AV Collection was largely found at Site A and contained little original order. This series is loosely organized by format type, and alphabetically within each format. An index includes: 133 VHS, 47 U-matic, 30 U-matic S, 1 Master tape, 1 Film, 22 Helical Scan Video, 15 reel-to-reel videotape, 9 Betacam, 6 CVC, 2 Hi8, 14 reel-to-reel audiotape, 66 cassette tapes, and 6 CDs. Boxes 204 through 216 contain video formats; box 217 contains audio formats. Many of the AV materials contain no date, but dates have been recorded where present. Many boxes contain more than one format.

Artpark content that was digitized by Hallwalls in conjunction with the University at Buffalo is not included in this collection. A public-facing inventory of the Hallwalls digitized content is not available for the finding aid, but the Archivist can provide inventories for review.
